VOL. XIII

DIDSBUY, ALBERTA, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 7th, 1915.

No. 14

QUEEN QUALITY SHOES FOR COMFORT

Poor fitting of shoes has always been an aggravation. No shoe ---whatever its name or price---will wear satisfactorily or give comfort unless properly fitted to the foot.

There is a proper size and width for your foot among the various lasts on which "Queen Quality" is made. See that you get the proper size and width for your foot. It means comfort and durability.

Your Horse Pays For It—Not You!

The small sum you lay out for a TAPATCO Horse Collar Pad comes back to you many times over in the increased working power of your horses.

Your horse needs it just as surely as it needs feed and shelter. Wise horsemen use TAPATCO Pads.

This Pad Prevents Chafed Necks and Galled Shoulders

Fits any collar—is porous and affords ample ventilation. Composite Stuffing. Light, soft, springy and very absorbent. Keep your horse in tip-top condition.

Red Cross

A meeting of the Local Red Cross Society was held on Wednesday last at Mrs. Chambers residence to take up the request from provincial headquarters that Didsbury supply a hospital cot to be called the Didsbury hospital cot.

These cots fully furnished cost $50, and the society discussed the question as to whether it could be done. There seemed to be no question but that it would be a good thing and the ladies are going to call on the young men of the town to supply the necessary funds. Mrs. J. E. Stauffer and Mrs. A. Brusso were appointed a committee to collect the funds.

The Society wishes to thank the Evangelical Sunday School for their handsome donation of $30 this week. Part of this money is from the Christmas tree fund, the Sunday School denying themselves the pleasure of receiving Christmas gifts to donate the money to this purpose.

Letter of Thanks

Mrs. (Dr.) Moore, Sec.-Treas. of the Red Cross Society has received the following letter:

I beg to acknowledge with thanks your express order for $37.00 being a donation towards our nurses fund from the Didsbury local branch, the Women's Institute at Rugby, and the Elkton schoolchildren. We are so greatful to you for your kind help and shall be glad if you will convey to all interested our hearty thanks and appreciation of their efforts.

Signed by Miss PINKHAM,
Hon. Sec.-Treas.

BORN

OLIVER—On Friday, April 2nd, 1915, to Mr. and Mrs. F. K. Oliver, a son.

E. E. Wilson left on Saturday for a business visit to B. C.

Frank Brower, manager of the Olds Gazette, was a business visitor in town on Wednesday.

Mr. Robt. Semple of Burnside S.D. has sold out his farm and stock and intends moving back to Manitoba.

Mrs. R. Alloway, Mrs. J. Reed and Mrs. A. Cooper will have charge of the Red Cross depot on Friday afternoon.

Council Meets

The Council met on Tuesday night instead of Monday, which was a legal holiday, this week. Mayor Osmond, Councillors Chambers, Reed, Sinclair, Wood, Herber, Secretary Brusso and Solicitor Austin present. Councillor Paton, absent.

Several minor communications were read and disposed of. Accounts totalling $65 for general account and $604 for electric light account were passed and ordered paid when the necessary funds were available.

A bylaw appointing Mr. Keely of the Union Bank staff auditor for the year was given three readings and passed.

The bylaw re business tax was given two readings and left over till next meeting for third reading.

The Council discussed the condition of vacant lots on Railway Ave. between Osler and Berlin street and on motion it was decided that owners of vacant lots in burnt area on Railway Ave. be notified to clean them up and fill in old cellars as they are a menace to public safety.

The report from the department of municipalities re Inspector's report of Town affairs was tabled for inspection by the Council. The report stated that the town affairs were in fair shape and asked for some changes in clerical routine which are being complied with.

The mayor stated that the Fair Board directors asked for the privilege of fixing up fair grounds. He had told them that he thought there would be no objection but asked the Council to also give their sanction to his action. The Council entirely agreed in the matter.

Meeting adjourned.

H. E. Osmond with assistant Secretary to be chosen from the boys; Scoutmaster, G. B. Sexsmith, Assistant Scoutmaster—; Patrol leaders, Cecil Studer and Bert Frost.

The boys are very enthusiastic and are taking a great interest in the movement. They are looking forward to some good times this summer and no doubt they will have them.

The organization is not a military one, and while some of the principles of the scout movement may appear military they are only brought in for the purposes of discipline. The whole movement is for the purpose of giving the Scout self reliance in cases of emergency, teaching him self control, and to inculcate in him the spirit of honor and chivalry towards others as well as giving the boy an outlet in a boyish way for his energies. It is hoped that the movement will have the support of the parents.

Warning

To such people, who are, and have been making up and spreading false reports about Harry Gabel, my wife and myself, remember friends there is severe punishment for such acts. Mr. Gabel and I were forced to suffer unjust loss over an honest deal, about which certain parties are delighted and are still adding worse and more of it to their above false reports. You may think by trying to hurt our credit you can build up your own. Perhaps you are working on a good cause, eh! However, John and males of the same feather, you had better pay heed to this warning. Some of you have already in return for your meanness suffered punishment in a just but spiritual way, and if it need be we can also punish you in a just and lawful way.

Thanking you, I am,

E. F. BRAUN

Olds Prohibitionists at Didsbury

(Contributed)

Wednesday evening, March 17th, was well celebrated in Didsbury. The name of that good old patron Saint of Ireland may have been barely mentioned but the spirit of the large audience that crowded our Opera House and especially of the seventy-five who came down from Olds, and those of Didsbury, who made all necessary preparations for the event, did great honor to that name, which, regardless of nationality, we all delight in honoring. Saint Patrick gave his life for the well being of the Irish folk and the Prohibitionists of Olds and Didsbury are giving a little piece of their lives for the well being of the Alberta folk among whom there are not a few of the Sons of Erin.

When the train pulled in to Didsbury at 8 p.m. and the passengers began to crowd upon the platform it looked as if Olds had decided to enter and possess the land of promise. Great excitement prevailed in the town but relief came when, after partaking of its milk and honey and unloading themselves of a considerable amount of surplus Prohibition ideas and enthusiasm, they boarded the 2 a.m. train going north.

It is impossible to estimate the success which has attended the plan in the interests of prohibition, which was begun by Didsbury going to Olds on the evening of March 3rd, with eight speakers, two pianists, one soloist and the full Didsbury Orchestra, putting on in that town a programme of speeches and music, and completed by Olds coming to Didsbury with ten speakers, one soloist and pianist, two violinists, an orchestra and a host of roosters, but the general feeling seems to be that the plan worked out admirably and that Prohibition has been given a much more prominent place in the civic life of these two towns concerned and that it would be well to extend the plan to include other towns.

While every item on the Olds at Didsbury programme is deserving of special mention, we will content ourselves that, though our backs and legs ached (our voices were straining) and our eyes blazed before the programme ended, most of the audience, judging by the applause, would gladly have sat or stood longer, so interesting were the speeches, so charming the music. We are prepared to wager, if there were any savages present that night their homeward conclusion would have fully justified the saying "Music hath charms to soothe the savage breast." If Olds cannot boast of a large orchestra, they certainly can boast of an Orchestra of quality. Mrs. (Dr.) Hartman and Mr. F. M. Henderson, in the orchestra as in their solo work, afforded us a great treat—as also did Miss E. M. Moore, in her piano solo "Spanish Caprice."

While space will not permit us to go into details with regard to the speeches, it might be interesting and profitable to know the subjects and by whom they were treated.

The chair was ably filled by the President of the Olds Prohibition Organization, Mr. Craig, Sr. Mr. Craig was introduced in a few words by Mr. Chambers, President of Didsbury Electoral District Executive. Mr. Craig, after commenting on the various kinds of rivalry, illustrating the kind that should be avoided with a very humorous story, and congratulating us on our town, which we have built up upon the ashes of our former one, called on Mr. J. W. Hughes, whose subject was "Progress of Temperance Sentiment." Mr. Hughes was followed by Mrs. H. W. Brown, speaking on "Prohibition and the Home"; Mr. W. K. Gibson, speaking on "Advantages of Prohibition to the farmer"; Mr. Ed. Langdon, speaking on "Where is the drinking man wanted?"; Mrs. C. G. Reed, bringing a message from Olds W.C.T.U., Mr. C. G. Craig, dealing with "Prohibition from a Government standpoint"; Mr. Moore, dealing with "Prohibition and Health"; Mr. Hugh Gunn, describing conditions in towns and states "Before and after" Prohibition and finally Inspector Ayleworth dealing with "Relation of Prohibition to Educational interests in Alberta."

At the conclusion of the programme the Olds people were the guests of the Didsbury people at a banquet given in Old Fraternity Hall, under the auspices of Didsbury W. C. T. U. Over one hundred and fifty people sat down to a row of tables, beautifully decorated with Irish green, loaded with lots of good things to eat and surrounded with decorations, which gave the event an air, which was not only Irish but patriotic. The Olds people expressed their appreciation of their entertainment through the words of Rev. Mr. Argue, Mr. Moore and Mr. Craig, Sr. We regret that no one responded to these words, expressing our pleasure in playing the role of host. The reason seems to be that while we were trying to recall a story to match those told by our guests, the opportunity passed.

Westerdale

Under the auspices of the local branch of the Alberta Temperance and Moral Reform Association, a public meeting will be held at Westerdale church on Friday, April 9th at 8 p.m. The meeting is being specially arranged in view of a flying visit from one of the Association Field Secretaries—Mr. Dobson.

The subject of his address will be "Science, Economics and Alcoholism," illustrated by sixty lantern slides.

The speaker will also explain the objects and terms of the proposed Prohibition Act which is to be voted on in Alberta next July 21st.

All persons interested in Temperance cause are cordially invited to attend.

Come 'on time'—Friday, April 9th, at 8 p.m.

AN APPEAL TO FARMERS AND OWNERS OF LAND

WE ASK:

That all farmers who are likely to require hired help in the coming season:

That all owners of unoccupied land who want a chance to make it profit-bearing, and would be willing to entertain share partnership or similar proposals;

That all persons wishing to lease their improved land upon a partnership basis should COMMUNICATE AS EARLY AS POSSIBLE WITH:

The Chief Publicity Commissioner,
Department of Agriculture,
EDMONTON, ALBERTA.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS

The sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3 per acre.

Duties—Six months residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land. Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

The Mystery of the Ravenspurs

By Fred M. White

Ward, Lock & Co., Limited
London, Melbourne and Toronto

Yet the curl of a bitter smile was on Ravenspur's face as he returned to the dining room. Even in the face of these precautions two of the garrison had gone down before the unseen hand of the assassin. There was some comfort in the reflection that the outer world was barred off, but it was futile, childish, in vain.

The young people, with Mrs. Charles, had risen from the table and had gathered on the pile of skins and cushions in one of the ingle nooks. Gordon Ravenspur was sipping his claret and holding a cigar with a hand that trembled.

Hardy man as he was, the shadow lay upon him also; indeed, it lay upon them all. If the black death failed to strike, then madness would come creeping in its track. Thus it was that evening generally found the family all together. There was something soothing in the presence of numbers.

They were talking quietly, almost in whispers. Occasionally a laugh would break from Vera, only to be suppressed with a smile of apology. Ravenspur looked fondly into the blue eyes of the dainty little beauty whom they all loved so dearly.

"I hope I didn't offend you, grandfather," she said.

In that big hall voices sounded strained and loud. Ravenspur smiled. "Nothing you could do would offend me," he said. "It may be possible that a kindly Providence will permit me to hear the old roof ringing with laughter again. It may be, perhaps, that that is reserved for strangers when we are all gone."

"Eight, father," Vera suggested. She looked up from the lounge on the floor with the flicker of the wood fire in her violet eyes. "Do you know I had a strange dream last night. I dreamt that Uncle Ralph came home again. He had a great black bundle in his arms, and when the bundle burst open it filled the hall with a gleaming light and in the centre of that light was the clue to the mystery."

Ravenspur's face clouded. Nobody but Vera would have dared to allude to his son Ralph in his presence.

For over Ralph Ravenspur hung the shadow of disgrace—a disgrace he had tried to shift off to the shoulders of his dead brother Charles, Marion's father. Of that dark business none knew the truth but the head of the family. For twenty years he had never mentioned his erring son's name.

"It is to be hoped that Ralph is dead," he said harshly.

A sombre light gleamed in his eyes. Vera glanced at him half timidly. But she knew how deeply her grandfather loved her, and this gave her courage to proceed. "I don't like to hear you talk like that," she said. "It is no time to be harsh or hard on anybody. I don't know what he did, but I have always been sorry for Uncle Ralph. And something tells me he is coming home again. Grandfather, you would not turn him away?"

"If he were ill, if he were dying, if he suffered from some grave physical affliction, perhaps not. Otherwise—"

Ravenspur ceased to talk. The brooding look was still in his eyes; his white head was bent low on his breast.

Marion's white fingers touched his hand caressingly. The deepest bond of sympathy existed between these two. And at the smile in Marion's eye Ravenspur's face cleared.

"You would do all that is good and kind," Marion said. "You cannot deceive me; oh, I know you too well for that. And if Uncle Ralph came now!"

Marion paused, and the whole group looked one to the other with startled eyes. With nerves strung tightly like theirs, the slightest deviation from the established order of things was followed by a feeling of dread and alarm. And now, on the heavy silence of the night, the great bell gave clamorous and brazen tongue.

Ravenspur started to his feet.

"Strange that anyone should come at this time of night," he said. "No, Gordon, I will go. There can be no danger, for this is tangible."

He passed along the halls and passages till he came to the outer oak. He let down the portcullis.

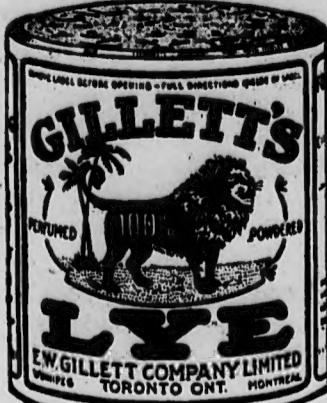

"Come into the light," he cried, "and let me see who you are."

A halting, shuffling step advanced, and presently the gleam of the hall lantern shone down upon the face of a man whose features were strangely seamed and scarred. It seemed as if the whole of his visage had been scored and carved in criss-cross lines until not one inch of uncontaminated flesh remained.

His eyes were closed; he came forward with fumbling-outstretched hands as if searching for some familiar object. The features were expressionless, but this might have been the result of those cruel scars. But the whole aspect of the man spoke of dogged, almost pathetic, determination.

"You look strange and yet familiar could I mention it, and whether he is alive or dead I do not know."

Marion rose. The strangely uttered words made her feel slightly hysterical. She bent over Ravenspur and kissed him fondly. Moved by a strong impulse of pity, she would have done the same by her uncle Ralph, but that he seemed to divine her presence and her intention. The long, slim hands went up:

"You must not kiss me, my child," he said. "I am not fit to be touched by pure lips like yours. Good-night."

Marion turned away, chilled and disappointed. She wondered why Ralph spoke like that, why he shunned her approach as if she had been an unclean thing. But in that house of singular happenings, one strange matter more or less was nothing.

"The light of my eyes," Ravenspur murmured. "After Vera, the creature I love best on earth. What should we do without her?"

"What, indeed?" Ralph said quietly. "I cannot see, but I can feel what this is to all of you. Good-night, father, and thank you."

Ravenspur strode off with a not unkindly nod. As a matter of fact, he was more moved by the return of the wanderer and his evident sufferings and misfortunes than he cared to confess. He brooded over these strange things till at length he lapsed into troubled and uneasy slumber.

The intense gripping silence deepened. Ralph Ravenspur still sat in the ingle with his face bent upon the glowing logs as if he could see, and as if he was seeking for some inspiration in the sparkling crocus flame.

Then without making the slightest noise, he crept across the hall, feeling his way along with his finger tips to the landing above.

He had made no idle boast. He knew every inch of the castle. Like a cat he crept to his own room, and there, merely discarding his coat and boots, he took a blanket from the bed.

Into the corridor he stepped and lying down under the hangings of Cordova leather, wrapped himself up cocoon fashion in his blanket and dropped into a sound sleep. The mournful silence brooded, the rats scratched behind the oaken panelled walls.

Then out of the throat of the darkness came a stifled cry. It was the fighting rattle made by the strong man suddenly deprived of the power to breathe.

Again it came, and this time more loudly, with a ring of despair in it. In the dead silence it seemed to fill the whole house, but the walls were thick, and beyond the corridor there was no cognizance of anything being in the least wrong.

But the man in the blanket against the arras heard it and struggled to his feet. A long period of vivid personal danger had sharpened his senses. His knowledge of woodcraft enabled him to locate the cry to a yard.

"My father," he whispered; "I am

Prohibition in Iceland

Incidental to the project of personal reform through national prohibition it is to be noted that the parliament of Iceland has made a law forbidding the sale of alcoholic liquors within its jurisdiction. While Iceland is a Danish colony and subject to the authority of King Christian, its parliament has control of local affairs, and the experiment now undertaken undoubtedly will be carried out without interference.

It has significance more especially because of the recent autocratic edict making "dry" the great territory of the empire of Russia. So far this latter seems to have proved successful. Iceland, with some 85,000 inhabitants, ought to be able to control the matter as effectively as has been done with the millions of vodka drinkers in Russia.

It is not an affair of local option, however, but of national preference, and in this respect it may be instructive in its operation.—Boston Post.

The Horse and the War

The whole number of horses requisitioned in England, Scotland and Ireland on mobilization for the European war last summer was 134,000, according to the British war office. These were obtained within twelve days. Since mobilization was completed about 65,000 more have been taken, making all told 200,000 horses supplied to the army in a little more than five months. Probably 20,000 more have gone from Canada and a like number from the United States since the beginning of hostilities.

Over 2,000 Miles New Railway

According to figures just issued by the Dominion government the new single track constructed in Western Canada during the year amounted to 2,088 miles. On the basis that a railway line serves the territory for ten miles on each side, this new mileage has brought railway service to 41,760 square miles of territory.

There is quite as much education and true learning in the analysis of an ear of corn as in the analysis of a complex sentence; ability to analyze clover and alfalfa roots savors of quite as much culture as does the study of the Latin and Greek roots.—O. H. Benson, in The Banker-Farmer.

Metz, the greatest stronghold in Alsace-Lorraine, is protected by eleven forts, and in peace time it is the centre of the German army. Its sister fortress, Strassburg, designed by Moltke, was considered by him to be impregnable. It is protected by fifteen forts, connected by citadel railways, and from it armies can manoeuvre east or west of the Rhine without intervention.

Good Advice for the Country School

Prof. Chas. W. Eliot, Noted American Educationalist, Believes that every Child should Learn the Elements of Agriculture

I am glad to hear that The Banker-Farmer is to deal in its August issue with common school education in this country, especially in the rural districts. There is great need for a thorough reconstruction of the programs of the rural schools. The instruction which they now provide in reading, writing and arithmetic should not be diminished in amount, but altered in nature. The greater part of the direct instruction should relate to natural history, agriculture and farm life; and the books used for teaching reading and spelling should be on these subjects, with additional primers on geography, American history, and civics. The arithmetic should be confined to the simplest examples in addition, subtraction, multiplication and division, decimals being made familiar almost from the start; for the well-taught child will learn about tenths and hundredths as quickly as about tens and hundreds. All the child's reading, and all the teacher's oral instruction, should be illustrated with concrete examples, and every child should be trained to see, hear, and touch accurately, and to remember what it thus learns by observation. An important part of the school program should be devoted to the training of the senses, and this kind of training of the memory. No matter what system be employed in teaching reading, every child should learn the alphabet by heart; and whenever a change is made in the system of teaching the children to write—such changes have been too frequent of late—the change should apply only to beginners, and not to the children who have already practiced long the rejected system. In the last two years of the rural school's course, every child should learn the elements of agriculture and gardening, and should have a garden plot to cultivate. Prizes should be offered for the best plots of vegetables, small fruits, and flowers. Every boy should be given practice in the use of carpenter's tools; and every girl should be taught to sew, cook and can fruits and vegetables. Reading aloud and singing should be a substantial part of every rural school's program. The practice in English composition should mainly consist of writing descriptions of what the child itself sees, hears or touches.

These improvements in rural schools cannot be made without spending more money than towns and counties have been in the habit of appropriating; but no town or county expenditure will be so profitable to the community as the expenditure which makes these changes possible.

In order to put these improvements into execution on a large scale, all normal schools will have to prepare their graduates to give instruction in the subjects and methods indicated. Some normal schools are doing that now, but by no means all.

In the meantime, granges, farmers' clubs, bankers' and manufacturers' associations, endowed educational boards, and private givers may well promote liberally this much-needed reform.—From the Banker-Farmer.

To Assist Farmers of West

Banks Will Send Them Circulars on the Moisture Problem

The chartered banks in the prairie provinces have jointly decided to send through the mails this spring one hundred thousand circular letters to farmers, urging them to do the necessary work to preserve the moisture in the soil. This is a step which has never before been taken in the history of banking in this province. The message to farmers was prepared by the department of agriculture of Saskatchewan and it is intended as a last word to grain growers before they go on land in the spring. Packagings of these circulars, with the best advice of experts in grain growing, will be sent to hundreds of branch banks and from these branches copies will be mailed to thousands of customers. Copies of the circulars will also be posted in many public places in the towns where the banks have these branches.

"There is no sentiment in this proposed action of the banks," said a leading banker. "Many thousands of grain growers in the prairie provinces owe money to the banks and we are naturally anxious that they should all be in a position to pay this next fall. The condition this spring will be very much better than it was last spring in the matter of moisture. If sufficient work is done by our grain growers to preserve the moisture that is already in the ground, a failure of the crop of 1915 from drought would be impossible. We are therefore urging the farmer to prevent evaporation and preserve moisture."

A Scottish recruit stood on guard before a colonel's tent, when the colonel, putting out his head, said sternly to the new soldier: "Who are you?" "Fine! Who's yourself?"

Use for Flax Straw

May Develop a Linen Industry in Western Canada

An outcome of the war in Belgium may be the transferring of an important industry to Canada. The movement is being projected by Belgians with a view of relieving the suffering among the unemployed of that country.

Western Canada offers special opportunities to the flax industry, which has been brought to a state of high standard in Belgium, but owing to the war is now at a standstill. The making of linen has been a large and important industry in the little country that has made so heroic a showing in the present war. A large number of women are or were employed in the manufacture of linen and they are thrown out of work. In order to organize the industry in the west of Canada, efforts will be made to get in touch with the large Belgian manufacturers. Thousands of women are thrown out of employment and these could well emigrate to Western Canada and there find the very work waiting for them to which they have been used all their lives. It is expected that should the movement from Belgium be affected in any large proportion, a large number of male experts will also take advantage of the new country.

Flax straw of an estimated value running into millions of dollars is burnt every year in Western Canada for lack of facilities to utilize it.

"What's the difference," asked the teacher, "between caution and cowardice?"

Johnny, who obeyed things carefully for so youthful a person, answered:

"Caution is when you're afraid, and cowardice is when the other fellow's afraid."

Grown old in the service of his master and mistress, James was a privileged retainer.

He was waiting at table one day when a guest asked for a fish fork. Strangely enough the request was ignored.

Then the hostess noticed the epiphany, and remarked in a most peremptory manner:

"James, Mrs. Jones hasn't any fish fork. Get her one at once!"

"Madam," came the emphatic reply, "last time Mrs. Jones dined here we lost a fish fork."

James has now been relegated to the garden.

To Utilize Spirits as Combustibles

The Russian ministry of finance is organizing a competition with prizes running up to $15,000 for rendering methylated spirits and similar harmful leaveners absolutely undrinkable.

Prizes of $37,500 are offered for new or improved methods of utilizing spirits as combustibles.

These awards with other prizes proposed aggregate $300,000.

BABY'S OWN TABLETS THE HOME DOCTOR

No home where there are little ones should be without a box of Baby's Own Tablets. They cure all the minor ills of babyhood and their prompt use when baby is ailing will save the mother many anxious moments and the baby much pain. Concerning them Mrs. Paul Nemon, Tugassek, Sask., writes: "We consider Baby's Own Tablets as good as a doctor in the house and every time our little one is ailing they soon set him right again." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The worried countenance of the bridegroom disturbed the best man. Tiptoeing up the aisle, he whispered: "What's the matter, Jack? Hae ye lost the ring?"

"No," blurted the unhappy Jack, "the ring's safe eno' But, mon, I've lost ma enthusiasm."

He—I didn't know it was so late. Are you pure that clock is going? Feminine voice from above—It's going a whole lot faster than you are, young man.

May Be Tea or Coffee That Causes all the Trouble

When the house is afire, it's about the same as when disease begins to show. It's no time to talk but time to act—delay is dangerous—remove the cause of the trouble at once.

"For a number of years," wrote a western lady, "I felt sure that coffee was hurting me, and yet I was so fond of it, I could not give it up. At last I got so bad that I made up my mind I must either quit the use of coffee or die."

(Tea is just as injurious as coffee because it, too, contains the health-destroying drug, caffeine).

"Everything I ate distressed me, and I suffered severely most of the time with palpitation of the heart. I frequently woke up in the night with the feeling that I was almost gone—my heart seemed so smothered and weak in its action. My breath grew short and the least exertion set me panting. I slept but little and suffered from rheumatism."

"Two years ago I stopped using the coffee and began to use Postum and from the very first I began to improve. It worked a miracle! Now I can eat anything and digest it without trouble. I sleep like a baby, and my heart beats strong and regularly. My breathing has become steady and normal, and my rheumatism has left me."

"I feel like another person, and it is all due to quitting coffee and using Postum, for I haven't used any medicine and none would have done any good along as I kept drugging with coffee." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Postum comes in two forms:

Regular Postum—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—is a soluble powder. A teaspoonful dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water, and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

Both kinds are equally delicious, and cost per cup about the same.

"There's a Reason for Postum—sold by Grocers."

Lectures on Farm Topics

The Farmers' Week at the Manitoba Agricultural College proved a great success, the lectures being all of a high character, and all on important subjects bearing on farming. The male sex were not in evidence numerically, but this was partly made up by the keen interest displayed.

E. Ward Jones, professor of animal husbandry, in response to many and extensive inquiries from Manitoba farmers in view of the high prices which are being realized for oats of all grades at the present time, gave a lucid illustrated explanation of the values of each feed generally used on the farm. Alfalfa and fodder corn, in his opinion, should be on every farm.

F. G. Churchill, B.S.A., lecturing on practical soil problems, emphasized among other subjects the importance of crop rotation and good drainage principles.

with pinched faces and poor blood; they do not complain but appetite lags, they have no ambition and do not progress.

Such children need the rich medicinal nourishment in Scott's Emulsion above everything else; its pure cod liver oil contains nature's own blood-forming, flesh-building fats which quickly show in rosy cheeks, better appetite, firm flesh and sturdy frames.

If your children are languid, tired when rising catch cold easily or find their systems difficult, give them Scott's Emulsion; it supplies the very food elements that their systems lack.

Scott's Emulsion contains no harmful drugs and is so good for growing children it's a pity to keep it from them.

Farming

We are interested in the farming operations of this country for the very important reason that not only our success, but that of every business man, largely depends upon the success of the farmers.

Well-to-do farmers mean a prosperous community.

Impurities of the Blood Counteracted.—Impurities in the blood come from defects in the action of the liver. They are revealed by pimples and unsightly blotches on the skin. They must be treated inwardly, and for this purpose there is no more effective compound to be used than Paramee's Vegetable Pills. They act directly on the liver and by setting up healthy processes have a beneficial effect upon the blood, so that impurities are eliminated.

The British naval gunner is a good shot, and knows it. In one of the recent battles a British warship was about to engage a ship of the enemy, when an officer, pointing to the target, said to the petty officer in charge of the gun:

Liek a flash came the reply: "Aye, aye, sir. Which eye?"—Canadian Military Gazette.

WAR PUZZLE

The above picture shows a Torpedo Boat Destroyer and an Aeroplane. The Aeroplane belongs to the enemy. What fun destroying them on the deck of the vessel. Some of the crew have been knocked down by the shock, and some have jumped into the water in an endeavour to save themselves by getting aboard other boats that are nearby. Can you find the faces of the fourteen men in this picture? Some will be easily found, others are harder to discern, but by patience you can probably find most of them. You may win a cash prize by doing so. Many have done this. If you find the faces mark each one with an X; cut out the picture and send it to us together with a slip of paper on which you have written the words, "I have found all the faces and marked them." Write these nine words plainly and neatly as in cases of fies both writing and neatness will be considered factors in determining the winners.

How an Iowa Farmer Lost Over $5,600

Hans Garbus, a German farmer of Iowa, has discovered that the benefits which appear on the surface as attaching to the mail order plans sometimes spell disaster, and has written a very interesting story of his views in a certain farm paper. Here is a part of his story:

"We farmers need awakening to the fact that we have unmistakably reached the period where we must think and plan. I am one of the slow German farmers that had to be shown, and I am now giving my experience that others may profit, for knowledge is more expensive now than ten years ago.

"Twenty nine years ago I began my farm career. I had an old team and $50. Our furniture was mostly home-made—chairs, cupboard and lounge made from dry goods boxes, neatly covered with ten-cent cretonne by my girl wife. We rented eighty acres. Being a boy of good habits I got all needed machinery and groceries of our home merchants on credit, until fall crops were sold. The first year was a wet season and I did not make enough to pay creditors. I went to each on date of promise and explained conditions, paying as much as possible and they all carried the balance over another year. They continued to accommodate me until I was able to buy a forty-acre piece of my own.

As soon as I owned these few acres the mail order houses began sending me catalogues, and gradually I began sending my loose change to them, letting my accounts stand in my home town where I had gotten my accommodation when I needed it.

"We then had one of the thriftest little villages in the State—good line of business in all the branches, merchants who were willing to help an honest fellow over a bad year, and a town full of people who came twice a week to trade and visit. Our little country town supported a library, high school, band, ball team and we had big celebrations every year.

"A farm near a live town soon doubles in value. I sold my forty acres at a big advantage and bought an eighty, gradually adding to it until I had 200 acres of the best land in Iowa. I then felt no need of asking favors, and found it easy to patronize the mail order agents that came almost weekly to our door. I regret to say that I was the first in the country to make up a neighborhood bill and send it to a mail order house. Though we got bit every once in a while, we got in the habit of sending away for stuff.

"Gradually our merchants lessened their stock of goods—for lack of patronage. Finally we began to realize that when we needed a bit quickly for machinery, or clothing for sickness or death, we had to wait and send a way for it, which wasn't so pleasant. One by one our merchants moved to places where they were appreciated, and men of less energy moved in. Gradually our town has gone down; our business houses are 'tacky' in appearance, a number are empty, our schools, churches and walks are going down, we have no band, no library nor ball team. There is no business done in the town, and therefore no taxes to keep things up. Hotel is closed for lack of travel. Go down to the depot when the freight pulls in and you will see the sequel in mail order packages.

"Nine years ago my farm was worth $195 an acre; to day I'd have a hard matter to sell it at $165 an acre. It is 'too far from a live town'—so every farmer has said that wants to buy. He wants a place near schools and churches, where his children can have advantages. I have awakened to the fact that in helping to pull the town down, it has cost me $5,600 in nine years."
